What Is the Choice-Making Strategy? Offering choices to children involves allowing them to indicate their preference at specific points in time and throughout their day and then giving them access to the items or activities they choose. Choices can be offered in countless settings, including meals, chores, centers, routines, and play.

Using Choice and Preference to Promote Improved Behavior

Appreciationâ€”the choice to appreciate deeply your life and the people in it, and to â€œstay in the presentâ€” by turning each experience into something precious. 8. Givingâ€”the choice to share yourself with friends and community, and to give to the world at large without the expectation of a â€œreturn.â€” 9.
